'Our little Secret' is a project created by photographer Kasey Windle-Heath and Filmmaker/ Director Stacey Cutts.

The motives for creating this project is to develop and face our demons through creative means.
In naming this multi-media series 'our little secret', our aims from this being that this is what many abuse victims hear from there perpetrators.
We also gave this project this name as we aim to let this secret be known in aims to bring awareness to child abuse around the UK through the development of our work.

'Our little secret' is a multi-media exhibition with aims to create awareness and fundraising for child abuse and the NSPCC. With this in mind we have created something not only meaningful but unique.

Photographer, Age 27 from Barnsley. Inspired by those who have ambition and random quotations, described by others as bubbly and lovely.

Photography is not only my chosen occupation, it is my passion and my calling. From a young age, I have always had an artist edge although growing up and developing my artistic calling wasn't always easy, until I attend college for the first time to do Art and Design at Barnsley College. This is where I discovered photography as an art form and not just on a smart phone app. The darkroom fascinated me and I couldn't think of a place I was happier. This is when I discovered I my photographic eye. The eye for details, I discovered I don't just see the world as it was presented to me, I began to notice the formations, the shapes and crops that others couldn't.

Photography drives me, it is my burning desire to photograph everything I see and everything I see as beautiful in the world. To me beauty is not as obvious as some may think. Sometimes we need to peel back the cover to see the beauty underneath. This can be done through the ability of a photographing a piece, photography only shows what we want but what we want to show, a snippet of time and a moment from the past, a memory you can keep forever.

Stacey Cutts, 24 from Rotherham, Described by others as ambitions, Favourite saying 'meah'

Media has always been a big influence in my life, I have grown up watching endless films and TV shows, from this I have always pictured myself working onset,

I am inspired by Martin Scorsese as I am a big fan of gangster films and film noir, I love how Scorsese brings his personal experiences to light through the use of moving media and film-making

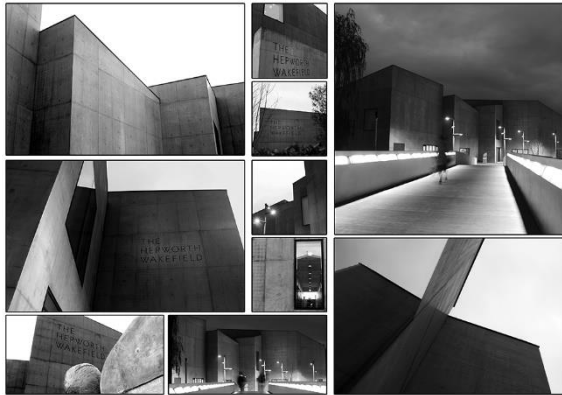

I am the only Filmmaker from this exhibition, I aim to create a short and artistic films that can inspire and create awareness to the things I believe in. Developing from a music background I found media to be my calling. I was drawn towards the creation of the visual aspects of film making and filmography.

The following images are representations of my journey through studying at Rotherham College. All images here are displayed around the lower part of the exhibition.

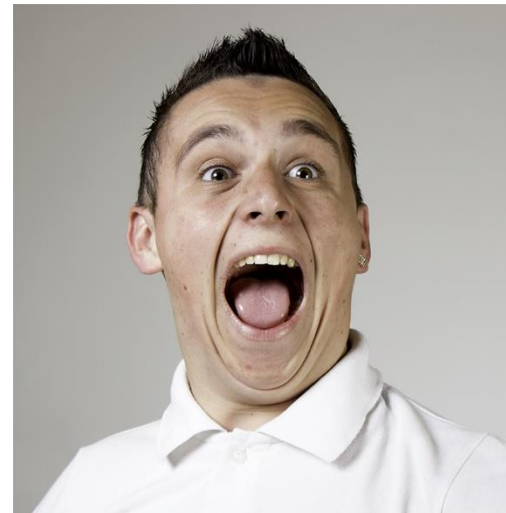

The Hepworth, Wakefield.

This project was to photograph the Hepworth building. This project inspired me to create a sculpture of my own, while the shape and texture of this piece was inspired by Barbra Hepworth's work, the design was my own.

The Photo Album as an object.

This project was to create something that would showcase images instead of your traditional ways. The photographic project I decided upon was called imperfection is beauty. This image represents images of an average human body, because nobody is perfect.

Expressions.

This project was for my final project on my HNC, the aims of this project was to photograph and explore people's facial expressions, dependant on what I said to them behind the camera.

Facial feature can show a person's personality and a person's feelings.

Patten's of the City.

Even though we may not notice them, patterns are everywhere, and where else better to photograph them than Sheffield town centre.

This project aimed to capture those man mad patterns

Movement.

The First ever project I did through Rotherham college, to record things moving or to record in a way that makes them seem to be moving. The panning shot of a Hawk was a snap judgement shot and one that I am very proud of
